Issue	Title of the issue	Scope
#431	[Other]: Sole contractor / Lead entity in EORoleType.gc (2.1.1) appears to be deprecated after repo moved.	n/a
#356	Inconsistency between eCertis and ESPD #interproc #356	clarification

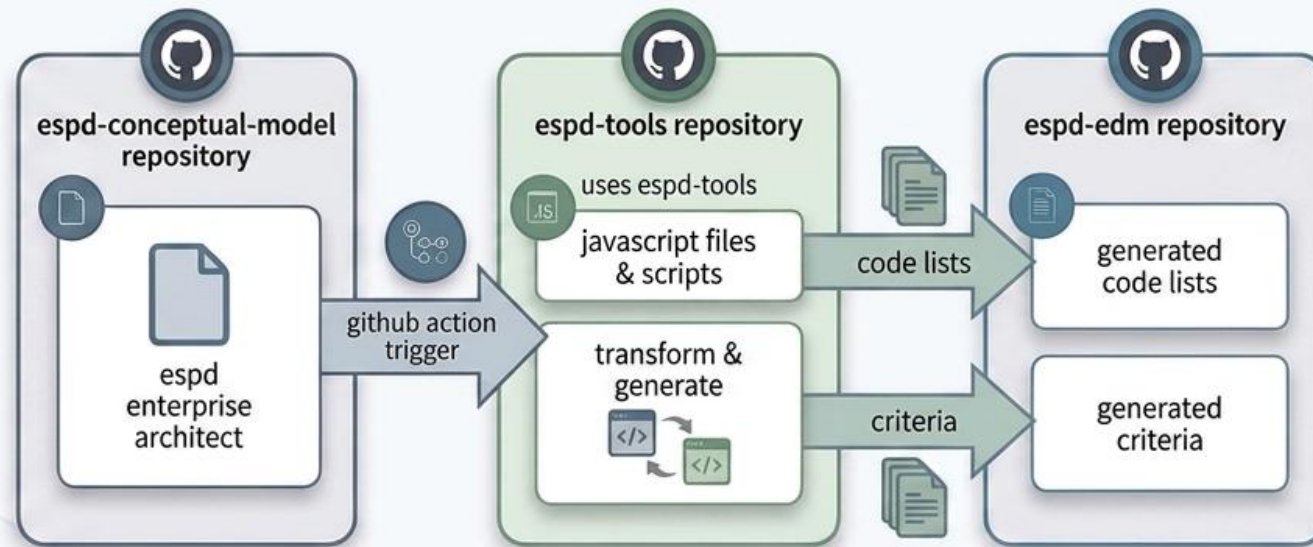

3. ESPD-EDM v5.0.0

- ESPD-EDM model implemented in Enterprise Architect

<https://github.com/OP-TED/espd-conceptual-model>

- Restructure of repositories
- Code lists updated to align with eForms
- Replacement of 'criterion' code list with 'exclusion-ground' and 'selection-criterion' code lists
- Improvements to generation of validation code
- Change of schema to UBL 2.4 as announced in 2025

4. Restructure of repositories

- ensures consistency
- reduces duplication
- makes future updates are much easier to manage

From conceptual model to implementation

4. Restructure of repositories

- The espd-conceptual-model is the foundation — it defines the “what” as the single source of truth.
- The espd-tools sits in the middle and provides reusable utilities.
- The ESPD-EDM is the implementation layer. This is where the actual schemas, code lists, and artefacts get published in order to build the ESPD services.

5. Validation repository updates

The files in this repository are used to create the validation files in the ESPD-EDM repository

<https://github.com/OP-TED/espd-validation-schematron>

- New Bash (Unix) Shell Script "validation-schematron.sh"
 - Equivalent of Windows MS-DOS script "validation-schematron.bat"
 - Runs in a bash shell window
 - Can be run on Windows, Macintosh, Unix computers

5. Validation repository updates

- Updated schematron and XSLT files
 - Aligned with updated code lists for ESPD-EDM v5.0.0
 - Improved consistency of checks

5. Validation repository updates

Next steps – improved efficiency of process to update the code

- Automated generation of all schematron from code lists
- Improvements to readability of code
- Checks on the order of Exclusion Ground and Selection Criterion questions automatically generated from the data model

6. Next steps

- V5.0.0 release - Q3 2026
 - Data model in JSON format extracted from Enterprise Architect
 - New code lists
 - Restructure of repositories
 - Improved generation of validation code
 - UBL 2.4
- Long term plan
 - Revamp of "relied-upon" block as agreed with DG GROW
 - Improved alignment with eProcurement Ontology and eForms as they evolve
 - UBL elements review - Other criteria
